After the refusal to exclude the dissident candidate from LREM, the majority party, the tone is appeased within the majority. No question of creating a crisis for the municipal election in the first city of France, waiting to see how the two candidates are divided. Cedric Villani is now trapped within the same game, of Accepting him, and keeping him LREM party, after electing internally Benjamin Griveaux as the only official. candidate.

Above all, do not aggravate the situation. Three days after the announcement of the dissident candidacy of Cédric Villani for the mayor of Paris, the tone is appeasement on the side of the Republic in March (LREM). While the movement founded by Emmanuel Macron this weekend in Bordeaux his "Campus territories" to precisely prepare for the municipal elections of March 2020, this application is a mess. "Until the end we will keep the extended hand to Cédric Villani. I regret his decision, but I hope that we can lead this campaign together," said Saturday morning Stanislas Guerini, the boss of LREM, in an interview with the "Parisian ". The day before, Benjamin Griveaux, official candidate of LREM for Paris, also played appeasement, preferring to point in "Le Figaro", its "convergences" on the merits with the dissident candidate. In Bordeaux, the elected representatives of the presidential party do not hide their embarrassment in this first case of dissent, in the most strategic and emblematic city of municipal elections for Emmanuel Macron. They are waiting for the next weeks to get a clearer picture of the situation, waiting to see if the candidacy of Cedric Villani will take off once past the media buzz he received.

CEDRIC VILLANI MULTI AWARDED IN MATHEMATICS IS NOW RUNNING THE MAYOR OF PARIS CAMPAIGN AGAINST A. HIDALGO AND B.GRIVEAUX

After the refusal to exclude the dissident candidate from LREM, the majority party, Cedric Villani, the tone is appeased within the majority. There is no way of creating a crisis for the municipal election in the first city of France, waiting to see how the two candidates are divided.

ANNE HIDALGO MIGHT BE REELECTED IF VILANI AND GRIVEAUX CONTINUE TO FALL APART FROM THEIR SAME PARTY LREM-----

Anne Hidalgo can even hope to be re-elected in March 2020, despite a rather degraded image. This is the conclusion that emerges from the IFOP-Fiducial poll for the Sunday newspaper (JDD) and Sud-Radio, published Sunday, September 15, the first carried out after the dissent of Cédric Villani. Since according to the IFOP polls, and the survey, conducted from 9 to 12 September to 968 Parisians registered on the electoral lists, the two LREM deputies are in the neck and neck. Benjamin Griveaux (former government spokesman), officially designated by his party last July, gets 17% of the voting intentions in the first round. Cedric Villani, his rival rejected by the party LREM, during the inauguration meets, meanwhile, 15%. While Anne Hidalgo, the outgoing mayor of Paris, collects head, with 24%. Indeed if Cedric Villani decided to join Benjamin Griveaux they would collect a cumulative score of 32% assuring the success of the ERM face Anne Hidalgo the socialist. And the small bonus of accumulating other candidates to smaller scores, such as Pierre-Yves Bournazel meeting 5%, for the party "Act" the presidential majority that would yield 37% of the voting intentions in the first round, more than outgoing mayor Anne Hidalgo (24%).

BENJAMIN GRIVEAUX AND CEDRIC VILLANI ARE EQUALLY LEGITIMATE AND EMBLEMATIC OF LREM TO FIGHT ANNE HIDALGO THE CRENT MAYOR OF PARIS-----

Benjamin Griveaux and Cedric Villani are equally legitimate. They are both emblematic of LREM, "said the majority MP Cédric Roussel, candidate for the inauguration in Nice. However, the tone was not benevolent at the time of the announcement of the application of the mathematician. "Villani read a text in a bar, with a tone and grimaces not very reassuring. [...] It is hardly less embarrassing than if Greta Thunberg was a candidate for the metropolis of Lyon," said Secretary of State Marlene Schiappa, a supporter of Benjamin Griveaux, in a loop Telegram, according to statements reported by "Point". Yet, in the high place, it was decided to calm the game. "For Paris, Emmanuel Macron is more Darwinian than ever," said a leader of the majority. Hence the decision not to exclude Cédric Villani, very popular among walkers and MPs of the majority. He should not be made a martyr and pass the image of a party where any discordant voice is immediately sanctioned. Emmanuel Macron having built In Walk in transgression compared to the installed parties, it is not surprising that some follow him in this way. Dissidents excluded at the request of the official candidate "If we want them to have a chance to meet, we must not exclude Cedric Villani," said MP Aurélien Taché from the corridors of the exhibition center in Bordeaux.

CEDRIC VILLANI IS A BRILLIANT MATHEMATICIAN HAVING SUCCESSFUL IN FRANCE AND USA AND RECENTLY BECAME A MAJOR POLITICIAN-----

Cedric Villani born 5 October 1973, is a French mathematician and politician working primarily on partial differential equations, Riemannian geometry, and mathematical physicals. He was awarded the Fields Medal in 2010 and he was the director of Sorbonne University's Institut Henri Poincaré from 2009 to 2017. In one of two lectures given at the Royal Institution, Villani recalls that his initial inspiration regarding the field of mathematics came from 1959 Disney cartoon Donald in Mathematic Land. This lecture is titled Birth of a Theorem. The English translation of his book Théorème vivant (Living Theorem) has the same title. His second lecture at the Royal Institution is titled The Extraordinary Theorems of John Nash. Villani was elected to the National Assembly, the lower house of the French Parliament, during the 2017 legislative election. A member of la République En Marche! (LREM), he represents Essonne's 5th Constituency. He was elected Vice President of the French Parliamentary Office for the Evaluation of Scientific and Technological Choices in July 2017. After attending the Lycée Louis Le Grand (Elitist High School of Paris), Villani was admitted at the École Normale Supérieure, in Paris, and studied there from 1992 to 1996, after which he was appointed an agree preparateur at the same school. He received his doctorate at Paris Dauphine University in 1998, under the supervision of Pierre Louis Lions and became professor at the École Normale Supérieure de Lyon, in 2000. He is now professor at the University of Lyon. He has been the director of Institut Henri Poincaré in Paris since 2009. He has held various visiting positions at Georgia Tech (Fall 1999), the University of California, Berkeley, (Spring 2004), and the Institute for Advanced Study, Princeton (Spring 2009).

OF THE OFFICIAL CANDIDATE-----

In Bordeaux, Stanislas Guerini, the President of LREM, has issued a rule: dissidents will be excluded only at the request of the official candidate. As was not the case for Benjamin Griveaux, Cédric Villani was able to stay within LREM. "We will settle the differences on a case by case basis," says Stanislas Guerini. Cedric Villani's offensive on Paris is likely to emulate and cases of dissent could multiply within the party, fueled in particular by the soft reaction of the party vis-À-vis Cédric Villani. A significant risk to the extent that LREM does not exclude allies to outgoing mayors in many cities, sometimes to the chagrin of local walkers who do not forget that the movement was also based on renewal. In many cities such as Nice, Toulouse or Montpellier, the national commission of investiture of LREM has not yet decided, because local situations are difficult to manage. For his part, Cedric Villani began his campaign. He was on Friday with Pierre-Yves Bournazel, another candidate for mayor of Paris, just to show his own ability to gather. But he could also measure the difficulty of a campaign when, questioned the same day on the explosion of the price of housing in Paris, he was very incapable of providing any response, merely referring to future proposals ... "When one arrogantly denounces the balance sheet of the current majority, it is better to have some marbles", immediately denounced Ian Brossat Deputy Mayor in charge of housing.
